INDEX

TO THE

TWENTY-THIRD VOLUME

OF THE

NATIONAL QUARTERLY REVIEW.

Allibone's Dictionary of Literature and Authors, noticed, 380.

American Colonial Literature, article on, 314—want of distinctiveness, ib.—causes, ib. et seq.—early settlers, 316—germs of modern style, 317—colleges founded, ib.—first works, 318—Captain Smith, ib.—Spanish adventurers, 319 et seq.—French Jesuits, 320—New England writers, ib. et seq.—John Cotton, 321—Roger Williams, ib. et seq.—controversy, 323—John Eliot, 325—puritanism and poetry, ib.—elegies, 326—Anne Bradstreet, ib.—characteristics, 327—Cotton Mather, 328—witchcraft, 329—the Magnalia, 330—poetical writers, 331 et seq.—the Carolinas, 332—translations from classics, 333—Jonathan Edwards, ib.—his style and character, 334 Franklin, ib.—humorous writings, 335—poems, ib.—other writers, 336—number worth reading, ib.—era of the revolution, ib.

Ancient Africa and its races, article on, 296—unknown regions, 297—causes, ib.—obstructions, ib. et seq.—Dr. Livingstone, 298—other explorers, ib. et seq.—the negro, 299—other races, ib.—features of Africans, ib. et seq.—changes in races, 300—origin of Ethiopians, ib. et seq.—ancient records, 301—Egyptians, ib.—Gallas, 302—customs, ib.—Arabians, ib. et seq.—ancient civilization, 303—evidences, 304—political organizations, ib. et seq.—records, 305—personal characteristics, ib. et seq.—dominant races, 306—other tribes, 307—cities, 308—extinct peoples, ib.—pre-historic states 309—early records, ib. et seq.—ruins of cities, 310—ancient knowledge, 311—coast explorations, 312—the name Africa, 313—scriptural references, ib. et seq.—modern investigations, 314.

Andrews, Stephen Pearl, his Primary Synopsis of Universology and Alwato, noticed, 195.

Anonymous and Pseudonymous Authors and their Works, article on, 42—extent of anonymous literature, ib.—publications respecting, ib. et seq.—meaning of terms, 43—literary impositions, 54, et seq.—decrees against noms de plume, 46—French laws, ib.—Barbier's lists, 47—Querard's work, 48—"Junius," 49—Chatterton's forgeries, 50—Scott and his followers, ib.—English and American pseudonyms, ib. et seq.—initials, 51—defense of pseudonyms, 52—used by eminent writers, ib.—modern literary stimulants, 53—ancient practices, ib.—writers of the middle ages, ib.—anonymous books of former times, 54—Loyola's writings, 55—Pascal's letters, ib. et seq.—religious treatises, 56—limits of anonymous system, 57—value of historical works, ib.—responsibility for alleged facts, 58—Psalmanazar and his imposition, ib. et seq.—Galt's views, 59—anonymous criticisms, 60—Berkeley's assault on Fraser, 61—the Brontë sisters, 62—other lady pseudonymists, ib. et seq.—moral aspect of the subject, 63—Scott's evasion, 64—false claims, 65—indifference to fame, ib.

Aristocracy our, as manufactured from the raw material, article on, 277—our public, ib.—the age of pewter, ib.—mania for praise, 278 et seq.—variety of tastes, 279—satirists, 280 et seq.—London clubs, 281—Jenkinsism, ib. et seq.—Australian society, 282—receptions, 283—schools for scandal, 284—a social nuisance, ib.—ostentation, 285—laudation of royalty, 285—the modern herald, ib. et seq.—Jenkins in middle ages, 286—in Greece and Rome, 287—demand for puffery, ib. et seq.—unauthorized announcements, 288—prices of puffery, ib.—movements of the rabble, ib. specimens of notices, 289—extracts from society journals, 290 et. seq.—insulting to ladies, 292—"ladies' favorites," ib.—"distinguished" individuals, ib. et seq.—stylish equipage, 293—frequency of notices, ib.—increase of flunkeyism, 294—announcements in dailies, ib. et seq.—success of quackery, 295—purchased notoriety, 296

Authors, Allibone's Dictionary of, noticed, 380.

Buchanan, Robert, his Napoleon Fallen, criticised, 187.

Collegiate and scholastic quackery, male and female, article on, 337—the unities, ib.—praise and blame, ib.—clerical virulence, 338—courteous educators, ib.—vultures and sharks, 339—college commencements, ib.—boarding-school displays, 340—puffery of the press, ib.—Plato and Solomon, 341—common sense wanted, 342—European superiority, ib.—Jesuit Colleges, ib. et seq.—educational agencies, 343—qualified and ignorant, ib.—editorial weakness, 344—power of noise, ib.—New England colleges, 345—University of New York, ib.—Columbia College, ib.—Catholic colleges, 346—the Christian Brothers, ib. et seq.—Jesuit pretensions, 347—what they have been, ib.—Georgetown College, 348—Manhattan College and the archbishop, 349—his grace's declaration of independence, 350—Jesuit ruse, 351—undue restraint, ib.—air and exercise, 352—effect of liberality, 353—Jesuit interference, 354—effect on students, 355—Plutarch's maxim, 356.

Cooke, Governor Henry D., his message, noticed, 389.

Cornwallis, Kinahan, his Adrift with a Vengeance, noticed, 191.

Decline of Poetry, the, article on, 207—poetic history, ib.—its beginnings, 208—causes of decline, 209—what is poetry, ib.—form not essential, 210—necessity of rhythm, 211—the essence of poetry, ib.—the real groundwork, 212—its special charm, 213—the poet a creator, 214—his characteristics, 215—naturalness, ib.—poetic production, 216—the poetic state, ib.—historic proofs, 217—effect of climate, 218—influence of the age, ib.—the philosophic period, 219—the reign of law, ib. et seq.—poetry of nature, 220—ancient theories, 221—business and poetry, 222—a luxury, ib.—want of faith, 223—law of development, ib.—religion and nature, ib. et seq.—spontaneity, 224—requisites, 225—proofs of decline, ib.—its extinction a calamity, 226—best conditions, ib.—want of appreciation, 227—the scientific age, ib. et seq.

Deutsche Mächte, und der Fürstenbund, noticed, 182.

District of Columbia, Governor Cooke's message, noticed, 389.

Earth and its Inhabitants, Age and Vicissitudes of the, article on, 131—age of the earth, ib.—differences of opinion, ib.—scientific method of reasoning, 132—beginning of history, 133—extent of pre-historic period, ib.—antiquities, 134—methods of explanation, 135—inferences, ib.—the three ages, ib.—production of fire, 136—the bronze age, 137 et seq.—an age of copper, 138—the iron age, ib.—heaps of shells, 139—implements discovered, 140—antiquity of stone age, 141—trees of different ages, ib. et seq.—lake discoveries, 142 et seq.—inferences respecting lake dwellers, 144—earliest historical accounts, ib.—further discoveries and conclusions, 145—objects of such dwellings, 146—character of utensils, ib. et seq.—the different ages, 148—characteristics, 149—ages of epochs, 150—subject of races, ib.

England under the Tudors, article on, 228—Henry VII, 229—effect of maritime discoveries, ib.—Tudor characteristics, ib. et seq.—consolidation of power, 230—the feudal system, 231—accession of Henry VII, ib.—reign of Elizabeth, 232—The Queen of Scots, ib.—ferocity, 233—want of conveniences, ib.—dwellings of nobility, 234 et seq.—of the gentry, 235 et seq.—of the poor, 236—suppression of monasteries, 237—condition of the poor, ib.—wages of laborers, 238—efforts at amelioration, 239—government and capitalists, ib.—the poor law, 240—the Tudors and the nobility, 241—the court of Elizabeth, 242—the middle class, 243—extravagance of the court, ib. et seq.—hours for meals, 244, et. seq.—changes in table customs, 245—founding of schools, 246—learning of princes, ib.—colleges established by Tudors, 247—maritime enterprise, 248—distinguished personages, ib. et seq.—rise of the drama, 249—character of Elizabeth, 250 et seq.—the arts in her reign, 251—architecture, ib.—music, 252—dissemination of news, ib.—posial service, 253—modes of conveyance, ib.—population, 254—military and naval force, ib.—revenue, ib.—character of the people, 255.

English Intellect, the, what has done during Victoria's Reign, article on, 106—changes since the Queen's accession, ib.—condition at that time, ib.—Scott and Byron as representatives, ib. et seq.—new period in literature, 108—intellectual activity, 109—increase of periodicals, ib.—power of newspapers, 110—cheapness, ib.—magazine writers, 111—sensationalism, ib. et seq.—novel writing, 112—progress in refinement, 113—irreverence of French authors, ib.—excess of novels, 114—realism of English fiction, 115—the drama, ib. et seq.—historians, 116—improvements in historic writing, 117—theological writings, 118 et seq —influence of German school, 119—poetry, 120—lack of originality, ib.—differences of critical opinion, 121—Tennyson, ib.—mental philosophy, 122—daring of modern philosophers, 123—social and political writings, 124—physical science, ib. et seq.—travels and explorations, 125—discoveries in Africa, 126—jurisprudence, 127—journalism, ib.—general literature, 128—female sovereigns and literature, ib.—character of modern writings, 129—remuneration, 130—improvement of literary profession, ib.

European Nationalities and Races, article on, 1—the national question in Bohemia, ib.—geographical and political position, 2—population 3—purpose of the Pan-Slavis s, 4—difficulties, ib.—distribution of races, 5, et seq —Hellenic influence, 8—inhabitants of Greece, 9—the modern nation, 10—mixed character of Greek population, ib.—position of Hungary, ib.—the Poles, 11—Hungarian population, ib., et seq —national spirit, 13—Palmerston and Hungary, ib. et seq.—Polish and Hungarian revolts, 14—cause of failure, 15—Sclavonians and Germans, 16—German treachery, ib.—despotism and cruelty, 17—effect of aristocracy, ib.—the imperialist system, 18—liberalism in Vienna, ib.—centralization how secured, 19—attitude of the Czecks, ib —Czeck and Hungarian constitutions, ib. et seq.—Russian leanings, 20—pilgrimage to Moscow, 21—Czecks and Russians, 21.

Financial Basis of Society, the, article on, 88—the physical basis theory, ib.—acceptance of Huxley's views, ib. et seq.—mind and soul, 89—indefiniteness, 90—meaning of terms, ib.—necessity of sensible media, 91—character of finance in society, 92—no refined society without money, ib.—ratio of growth, 93—the society of wealth, ib.—requisites of admission, ib. et seq.—the society of rank and distinction, 94—need of money, ib. et seq.—development of higher order, 95—the society of culture, 96—dependence upon financial basis, ib.—other requisites, 97—the leading class in America, ib.—assimilation of species, 98—moral and religious elements, ib.—demoralizing influence of poverty, 99—effect of panics and crises, ib. et seq.—disastrous effects of agrarianism, 101—relative standing of social orders, ib.—the biological law, 102—the second order, ib., et seq.—the highest circle, 103—development of American society, 104—tendencies, 105—present character, ib.—prospects for future, ib.

French, tragic drama, the—Corneille, article on, 256—great men, ib.—Corneille's position, ib.—early French literature, 257—early writers, 258—Corneille's first comedy, 259—Clitandre and other plays, 260—first tragedy, 261—character and reception, ib.—comedy again, ib.—the Cid and its success, 262—opposition of Richelieu, 262—judgment of Academy, ib. et seq.—criticism of the Cid, 263 et seq.—Horace, 265—its character, ib. et seq.—reception, 267—Cinna, 268—criticisms upon the drama, ib. et seq.—Polyeucte, 271—chief characters, ib.—Pompée, 272 et seq.—other dramas, 273 et seq.—Corneille's industry, 274—compared with Racine, ib. et seq.—French taste, 275—characteristics, ib.—personal appearance, 276.

Fur, Fin, and Feather, a Compilation of Game Laws, noticed, 196.

Geisebrecht, Wilhelm von, his Deutsche Reden, noticed, 184.

Genesis of Species, the, by Mivart, noticed, 385.

Goethe's Faust, Taylor's translation, reviewed, 373.

Grote's History of Greece, reviewed, 377.

Hall's, Mayor, Message and our Municipal Administration, article on, 151——criticisms on park management, 152—partisan prejudice, ib.—Greek dramatists and American journalists, 155 et seq.—Venice and Florence, 157—resources and population of New York, 158.

Hammond, Dr. William A., his Physics and Physiology of Spiritualism, noticed, 193.

Lamartine, his Memoires Inédites, noticed, 383.

Mackenzie, Dr. R. Shelton, his life of Scott, noticed, 382.

Mivart, St. George, his Genesis of Species, noticed, 385.

Mitchell's Maps, new series, and Key, noticed, 179.

Müller, Max, his Chips from a German Workshop. (1st and 2d vol.) reviewed, 189.

National Quarterly, the "spiteful," and innocent Ring-leader, Rule, article on, 356—abuse of former article, ib.—charges unrefuted, 357—the responsible party, ib.—the brains of Tammany, ib.—Sarpi, 358—former criticisms, 359—the real culprit, ib.—Sweeny and Bismarck, 360—apology to latter, 361—ornithology, ib.—newspaper attacks, 362—exceptions, ib. et seq.—the Times, 363—thuggism, 364—temptations of saints, ib.—our higher courts, 365—New York mayors, 367—instigator of attacks, 368—Connolly and Brennan, 369—municipal patronage, 370—the general government, 371—unpaid bills, ib.

Natural History, Wood's, criticised, 386.

Origin of Lowest organisms, Bastian's, work on, noticed, 388.

Ranke, Leopo'd von, his Deutsche Mächte, noticed, 182.

Revue des Deux Mondes, noticed, 192.

Russian Advance in Asia, the, article on, 66—ignorance of the subject, ib.—Tartar conquests, 67—Cossack incursions, ib.—Russian aggressions, ib et seq.—advance into China, 68—conflicts, 69—explorations on the Amoor, ib.—annexation of territory, 70—value of acquisitions, ib.—further advances, ib.—value of Siberia, 71—mineral wealth, 72—improvements, ib.—advances southward, ib.—discoveries of silver and lead, 73—Russian cunning, ib.—other colonies, 74—agricultural resources, 75—schools and religion, ib.—character of Central Asia, 76—religious intolerance, 77—early Russian aggressions, ib.—value of rivers, ib.—modern advance of Russians, 78—conflicts with Khivans, ib.—expeditions and battles, 79 et seq.—object of the Russians, 80—invasion of Kokan, ib.—religious fanaticism, 81—the conquest completed, 82—further advances, ib.—end of the conflict, 83—advantages gained by Russia, ib.—Muscovite improvements, 84—Russian designs, 85—character of Eastern diplomacy, ib.—the English in the East, 86—superiority of Russian method, ib.—England's fears, 87—obstacles to Russian advance, ib.—projects of improvement, ib.—effect of success, ib. et seq.

Scott, Sir Walter, his life by Mackenzie, noticed, 382.

Soule, Richard, his Dictionary of English Synonymes, noticed, 182.

Spinoza, the Religion and Ethics of, article on, 22—object of philosophy, ib.—necessity for religious belief, ib.—influence of Spinoza, 23—atheism and pantheism, 24—the starting-point of philosopoy, ib.—first principles, 25—demonstration of first cause, 26—nature of Deity, 27—Spinozism and modern science, ib.—evil impossible, 28—no free agency, 29 et seq.—former pantheists, 31—pain a reality, 32—limits of suffering, 33—Cicero's opinion, 34—body and mind, 35—theory of Leibnitz, ib.—capacities of the body, 36—the immortal part, 37—practical bearings of Spinozism, 38—nature of mind, ib.—conscience, ib. et seq.—goodness and happiness, 39—the love of God, ib.—self-government, 40—all for good, ib.—charity, ib.—refutations of Spinoza, 41.

Taylor's translation of Faust, reviewed, 373.

Union Bible Companion, the, noticed, 189.

Wheeler, William A., his Vocabulary of Names of Fiction, reviewed and criticised, 173.

Wood, Rev. J. G., his Natural History, criticised, 386.